Background: CMS' DMEPOS accreditation requirement threatens patient access to important medical products because it adds unnecessary bureaucratic costs that will prevent many pharmacists from being able to continue to provide vital DMEPOS to their patients. The legislation will include language to add community pharmacists to the long list of medical professionals that have been conditionally exempted from the requirement by CMS (i.e. physicians, physical therapists, nurse practitioners, opticians, etc.). This change will preserve patient access to these valuable medical products.
